FROM WASHINGTON.

The Movements of Professed Anti-Nebraska Men in the House.

THE SENATE PRINTER.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Jan. 28.

The indefatigable movements of professed Anti-Nebraska men in the House to-day did no harm, except by relieving the Nebraska men temporarily from the pressure of their responsibility to aid in the organization, and in postponing the evil. Our friends are still firm, united and resolute. Patiently trying the result, convinced that the delay will bring success eventually, and that the Anti-Nebraska organization is less of an evil than a surrender of principle.

The Senatorial contest to-morrow morning is expected to nominate Nicholson for Printer, but it is still doubtful whether he will be successful.

An article is published in yesterday's Union, coming a question of the Southern Americans and Democratic caucus. It is meeting great disapprobation among the Western Democrats.

Mr. Dallas no Minister to England—Decay of Gen. Morris—The Plurality Resolution Still Alive.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Jan. 28.

The rumor that the mission to England has been tendered to Mr. DALLAS is generally credited here, and the most intimate friends of the gentleman express the strongest confidence that the report is well-founded.

Commodore CHARLES MORRIS, the senior naval officer in the United States Navy, died in this City yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Campbell's plurality resolution was tabled this afternoon, by the combined vote of Messrs. Gaylor and Fullmer's supporters, together with the votes of Messrs. Clarke of Ohio, Moore, Harrison, and Wentworth.

Mr. BANKLEY was the only Democrat voting against tabling the resolution.

That the English mission has been tendered Hon. Geo. M. DALLAS is indisputable.

XXXIIIth CONGRESS—First Session.

SENATE....WASHINGTON, Monday, Jan. 28.

Mr. BIGLER, of Pennsylvania, appeared, was qualified, and took his seat.

Mr. PRATT gave notice that he would to-morrow move for the election of a Printer to the Senate.

Mr. CASS addressed the Senate on the subject of Central American affairs, alluding to the remark of the Secretary of Legislature that this country might be drawing into difficulties, he said that he did not believe it. He thought the ship of State was on its true course and the pilot doing his duty.

Mr. CASS used strong language denunciatory of the positions assumed by the British Government relative to the Protectorate in Central America, characterizing its pretensions in setting up a King over the Mosquito Indians as a mere mockery, under which England alone conveyed real sovereignty. This statement was corroborated by—

Mr. CLAYTON, who read extracts from despatches of Mr. Lennox, the British Minister, and gave claim to that as his own name.

Mr. COLLAMER gave his views relative to the construction of the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty, and contended that there could be no possible pretext for the present occupation of England, that the occupation she agreed not to exercise, was only prospective, and had no reference to the occupation which she then held. He, however, thought the time for legislative action had not arrived, inasmuch as the President, in his annual Message, expressed hopes that there might still be an amicable adjustment of the controversies between this Government and Great Britain.

Mr. SEWARD obtained the floor, when the subject was postponed, and the Senate adjourned till Thursday.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Jan. 28.

Mr. LETCHER offered a resolution for the election of a Speaker by a plurality vote.

On motion of Mr. WHEELER, it was tabled by 106 against 100.

Mr. TYSON submitted a resolution in a spirit of compromise, for the election of a Speaker by a plurality—giving candidates, receiving not less than twenty-five votes, the appointment of Standing Committees, in proportion to their relative strength.

The resolution was rejected.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Ohio, called attention to a letter written by his colleague, (Mr. WADE), published in the Cleveland Herald, severely reflecting on him, (Mr. CAMPBELL) and others in connection with the resolution of Mr. THOMPSON, declaring Mr. CAMPBELL Speaker. He denied that he had any knowledge of Mr. THOMPSON's intention, and repelled the imputation of treachery on his part.

Mr. THOMPSON testified to this, and pronounced Mr. WADE's statements as to Mr. CAMPBELL unmitigatedly false, in inference and fact.

Messrs. LETCHER and SHERMAN each said that Mr. CAMPBELL would have appealed to Mr. THOMPSON, to withdraw his resolution, while it was being voted on, had they not dissuaded him.

Mr. DUNN said Mr. WADE sent his slanders abroad covertly, not having the courage to assert them openly. The attacks were like those of an assassin.

Mr. WADE explained. He still thought the introduction of that resolution, without consulting Mr. BANKS' friends, damaged the prospects of the Republicans. He made no direct charge—but thought he was warranted in drawing his inference from the facts then transpiring. After some other unimportant explanations the House proceeded to take the Hon. JOHN P. HALE and C. M. ELLIS are counsel for the plaintiff. Mr. HALE was not present. Messrs. B. F. HALLETT, RUFUS CHOATE and GORDON S. HUBBARD appear for the defence.

Important Railroad Decision in the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, Jan. 28.

In our Supreme Court, today, Judge BLACK delivered the unanimous opinion of the Court in the matter of The Cleveland, Painesville and Ashtabula Railroad vs. The City of Erie, to the effect that the Railroad Company have the right to extend their road through Erie to the eastern boundary, to connect with the Northeast Road, and that removal and destruction of property by the Mayor and Councils of Erie is unlawful, and must be restrained. The injunction sought for was granted.

In the case of The Erie and Northeast Road vs. Joseph Casey, the Court was divided.

Judges BLACK, LEWIS and KNOX held the repeal of the charter of the road was Constitutional and valid, while Chief-Justice Lewis and Judge WOODWARD held it to be unconstitutional and void. The case is to be taken up to the United States Supreme Court.

Generals PACHECO and SUTTES came passengers by the Texas, having been exiled for their connection with HARO.

Escape and Recapture of Slaves—Desperate and Fatal Resistance.

CINCINNATI, Monday, Jan. 28.

A stampede of slaves from the border counties of Kentucky took place last night. The usual shouts of several of the fugitives having been discovered here, officers at noon to-day proceeded to make arrests. Upon approaching the house where the slaves were secreted, the latter fired, wounding two or three spectators, but not seriously. One slave woman, finding escape impossible, cut the throats of her children, killing one instantly, and severely wounding two others. Six of the fugitives were apprehended, but eight are said to have escaped.

Fatal Railroad Accident.

NEW-HAVEN, Monday, Jan. 28.

The locomotive was thrown down an embankment nearly thirty feet. Mr. TUBBS' family, a wife and one child, reside in Springfield.

A carpenter's shop, owned by the New-York and New-Haven Railroad Company, was also entirely destroyed. The fire was undoubtedly caused by an incendiary.

BALTIMORE, Monday, Jan. 28.

New-Orleans papers of Monday of last week are to hand, but they contain no news of interest.

Mr. BEAUMONT, of Grand County, (Wis.) claims to have discovered a plant that yields two fibrous products—one resembling cotton, and the other flax—that are particularly well adapted for the use of paper-makers. The Buffalo Express has given this matter some attention, having submitted specimens of the flax of the paper plant to the inspection and opinion of practical and experienced paper manufacturers. The plant grows readily, is easy of culture, and yields the flax abundantly—three to five tons to the acre. The product is worth $140 per ton. There is already a field of this plant in culture in Wisconsin. If this plant fulfils expectations, newspaper readers may look out for cheaper reading.

A REPORTER EXPELLED.—The City Council of Cincinnati have expelled the reporter of the Gazette. It appears a motion was made in the Council declaring steam whistles a nuisance, to which one of the Aldermen proposed an amendment, adding reporters also, which was passed, as it should be, as stupid. This the editor of the amendment took in dudgeon, and prevailed upon a majority of the Council to expel the reporter.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Ignorance of the British Press on American Affairs.

The London Herald on the British Enlistment Fury.

NUMBER ONE.

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Jan. 25, 1856.

No intelligent American who attempts to keep himself posted up in regard to the course of the London Press, can fail to be struck by its almost incredible ignorance and stupidity relative to the United States and their affairs. These characteristics were especially pressed upon our attention by the famous article of the London Times of the 25th October last, which was based upon two ridiculous ideas,—the first, that the Port of New-York was filled with Russian privateers,—and the other, that some practical movement of Irishmen for the capture of Ireland, was going on here. The same spirit of mingled ignorance and malicious misrepresentation, especially on the subject of the British enlistments in the United States has, from that day to this, pervaded all the London journals so far as I have observed, except the Telegraph and the Morning Chronicle Gazette. These discreditable traits are particularly noticable in the Times, Chronicle and Herald. The Post has blundered to some extent, but neither so egregiously nor maliciously; and the Telegraph, alone of the prominent dailies, seems to have been actuated by an earnest desire to learn and disseminate the truth, whether it should be pleasing to English or to American ears.

I desire to call the attention of the American people to these facts, and show by what an extent British ignorance, falsehood and malice are capable of going when treating of the United States. There could be no better illustration of my subject than is furnished by the leader of the London Herald of Dec. 20, which undertakes to give an authentic history of the whole British enlistment affair, while, in fact, nearly every one of its statements is a deliberate falsehood, contrary to perfectly notorious facts, to such a degree that it is inconceivable how any respectable journal could ever be induced to publish such trash. I propose to dissect this article, to expose its falsehoods, and to show that it is impossible even to plead unintentional error in its defence. Such mere imposition upon the public of England can have no effect except to keep it in a state of delusion, and subject it to the greater pain and disappointment when the official dispatches are communicated to Congress and to Parliament, and the naked facts are thus nerved and placed beyond doubt. I propose to copy the London article, statement by statement, and add to each the necessary comment.

"We believe it will be found, notwithstanding all that has been said, and written upon the recent American difficulty, the blunder on the other side of the Atlantic, and the excitement so ludicrously erected by certain public writers on this side, that the true history of the affair has yet to be told, and when that history comes to be generally known, we do not doubt to which side public opinion will eventually incline. In plain language, the American Government, when the facts are properly brought into light, appear, not only to disadvantage, but in a light by no means creditable to the Administration of any country."

There is no doubt, then, that the formation of a foreign legion in America was the result of numerous applications for service on the part of American volunteers, and that in the first instance, many of the applicants were actually introduced and recommended by the American authorities."

Where, in the history of this affair, is it to be found the least shadow of proof that "the formation of a foreign legion in America was the result of numerous applications for service on the part of American volunteers, and that "many of the applicants were actually introduced and recommended by the American authorities." IMPORTANT FROM KANSAS.

The Republican Element of the Free-State Party—Result of the Election of State Officers—Rumored Arrest of Sheriff Jones.

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times.

LAWRENCE, K. T., Saturday, Jan. 19, 1856.

The Free-State Party are beginning to assume distinctive Republican principles. Thousands of large and [illegible] Democrats are now enrolled in the Party, in consequence of a platform call which the following resolution [illegible]

WHEREAS, The Pro-Slavery Party of Kansas have [illegible] to carry out the system of Slavery, [illegible] and resolved, That we believe the movement and reorganization of the party thus effected, as reliable and firm defenders of freedom in Kansas.

The gentlemen composing this delegation will leave the last of this month.

JAN. 16.—Yesterday the election of State officers came off, and with quite a majority as we now hear from. Roberts is beyond doubt elected by a large majority, the holding ticket having made but little progress. A Democrat gave the opposition ticket a good indorsement. The vote throughout the Territory will be pretty full, except in Leavenworth, Hickapoo, Ashmun, and may be some other towns on the river where we expect no polls were opened, on account of absolute fear of loss of life and property. The Mayor of Leavenworth issued a proclamation forbidding the holding of any election, as he deemed it unsafe so to do. The former Mayor, I learn, has resigned, who was a professed Free-State man, the new one is not.

The Pro-Slavery Party in this precinct came forward and voted generally for Black Law men. They did it through fear that the State organization might submit to something, and if it did they said they wished to be represented. But the regular Free-State ticket was elected.

More arrests for crimes have been attempted by Sheriff Jones. He succeeded in arresting two men, charged with stealing. They were guilty of some flagrant crimes, and no interference was offered, more on this account than on any other. One of them, however, presented a revolver to Jones, and said he would not be taken. Jones afterwards succeeded in getting him. This was last week; but to-day, after the criminal was bound over, and Jones was about taking him to a place of safe-keeping, the wife of the prisoner came forward, took her husband by the wrist, and told the Sheriff he could not go; whereupon Jones advanced to take him, when she drew a revolver, cocked it and raised it, bidding him not to touch her husband, if he did, she would shoot. This was in the street, in front of the Magistrate's office. A large crowd at once gathered round, and sent up a loud laugh, much to the chagrin of Jones. This happened late this afternoon, and the prisoner will be in her custody, instead of the Sheriff's, to-night. What the result will be, no one can tell. The woman was from Massachusetts. Names may be necessary hereafter.

Another man, charged with being engaged in robbing a tailor's shop, refused to be arrested on any terms. Jones then addressed Dr. Robinson and Col. Lane the following note:

LAWRENCE, Jan. 18, 1856.

DEAR BRIER ROBINSON AND LANE—Gentlemen: Did you or did you not pledge yourselves, at a council held at Franklin, on the ——day of December last, to assist me, as Sheriff, in the execution of any person in Lawrence, against whom I might have a writ, and to furnish me with a posse to enable me to do so?

Respectfully, SAMUEL J. JONES,
Sheriff Douglas County, K. T.

Here is the answer:

LAWRENCE CITY, Jan. 18, 1856.

SIR: In answer to your note of yesterday, we state that at the time and place mentioned, we may have said that we would assist the proper officers in the service of any legal process in this city; and, also, that no forcible resistance would be made to the arrest, by you, of one of the members of Branson, as we deemed it to test the validity of the enactment of the Legislature, by an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States. Yours respectfully,

C. ROBINSON.
J. H. LANE.

S. J. JONES, Esq., Present.

These notes passed, and to-day Mr. Jones has sent another note, asking if they intend to aid him in the execution of Douglas County laws, and if they will furnish him a posse to enforce them. The answer to this has not been given; but it will doubtless be, that the Governor Department and Laws do not authorize the law to outlawhim them. Were I to answer him, I

Mr. Peter Cooper's Torpedo.

PETER COOPER, Esq., has long been known as a philanthropist. As a designer of instruments of death he enjoys a narrower celebrity. But it should be not without hopes of doing some good to the world, in even this grim way. He sends us the following for publication. We wouldn't be surprised, too, if we would just suggest, whether a small base fuse wouldn't answer better than the fine steel wire—besides being more used to submarine service. However, we believe the hoppers will work about as well as the third-story watertank on the City Hall, which Mr. Cooper suggested as a precaution against large fires, a year or two ago.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

The possibility that our country may soon be involved in a war with England, and that our ships-of-war may be assailed by which her enemy's vessels may be destroyed, as soon as they come within ten miles of our shore.

In the course of my reflections upon this subject, my mind has gone back to an experimental torpedo that I made, intending to send it out with the vessel sent against privateers, and various entities to aid the Greeks in their struggle for national independence. Not having the torpedo ready when that vessel sailed, it did not go, and was afterwards destroyed by the burning of one of my buildings.

The torpedo to which I allude will be a small vessel with a rotary steam engine driving a screw propeller. The steam was generated by a mass of red hot iron placed in a cavity answering to a fire-place in the boiler, which caused steam to generate with great rapidity. The torpedo vessel was formed like a trout, sharpened at both ends, carrying the torpedo, fastened by a crooked iron to the bow, at a distance of about two feet, so that the discharge of the torpedo, caused by striking the vessel, would only bend the iron without injuring the vessel. This vessel can be steered and guided with positive certainty by a person on shore, directly in the object intended to be destroyed. This can be accomplished by two rudders placed on the stern of the vessel. One of them serves to guide the vessel with its torpedo in the proper direction and the other is to cause to dive under the water when desired, and to bring it again to the surface, to show the person steering when it is going in a right line toward the vessel to be destroyed.

In order to enable the person to steer this torpedo with certainty, and remain on shore, he will require four wires, containing any desired length of fine steel wire to be rolled upon these reels. The ends of these wires are to be fastened to the ends of the tillers or rudders, and must be allowed to run off these reels as the vessel recedes from the shore. The person on shore, by holding on to either one or the ends of these wires, or tiller ropes, can give the true direction to the torpedo vessel. This vessel may be drawn back after the explosion, by the reels and wires, and again charged for another explosion.

Such a torpedo vessel can be driven with great velocity by a variety of the gases, or by compressed air under high pressure, to be worked off in the same manner as steam.

The torpedo vessel can be sent and guided at night with more certainty than it can by daylight. At night the vessel can carry a light with its dark side towards the object to be destroyed, and thus, while it cannot be seen by the vessel to be destroyed, it will be a safe guide to the person giving direction to the torpedo.

Such an instrument of certain destruction to every hostile ship will, I trust, prevent the landing of armies, and render it impossible to supply them with provisions, and thus bring about peace and friendly commerce throughout the world.

NEW-YORK, Jan. 23, 1856. PETER COOPER.

NEW-YORK, Monday, Jan. 28, 1856.

To the Editors of the New-York Daily Times:

Your notice of the "Panorama of China and Japan Illustrated," misrepresents me and my friend, Mr. Wren.

I am not connected with "Live-Oak Clubs." My politics are "strict adherence to the Constitution, and discouragement of white immigration from Europe." My Americanism extends to all adopted citizens but black ones. My Hard Democracy is as far from Know-Nothingism as the sun from a dark lantern.

Mr. Gardner R. Wren, aided by Messrs. "Kyle" and Dallas, painted the greater portions of both China and Japan Illustrated; therefore the preference given by your article to Mr. Mears is unjust.

I close the labors of Mr. Wren, during eight years' separate in the fatal interest of the hostile Chinese Empire, while expatriated at his own expense; the national loss of the sketches of the Chinese Expedition, as heroism, and of the nature of the services of Messrs. Marry and Kyle. You have a perfect right to differ from us in that opinion.

Please correct the misrepresentations and oblige.

Your obedient servant,

S. W. LANDER.

Certainly. One of the gentlemen who took part in the exhibition, assures us that not half the gas was let on during the unrolling of the first picture—a sufficient reason why it seemed much inferior to its successor, which was properly illuminated. We said nothing about Mr. L.'s politics.

Refusing Aid to the Trade Society.

The Church of the Pilgrims, in Brooklyn, over which Rev. Dr. Storrs is the settled pastor, is one of the wealthiest, largest, and most influential churches of the Congregational denomination in this vicinity. It has also, as a whole, hitherto been considered as occupying middle ground on the subject of Slavery. On Tuesday evening last, at the annual meeting for the election of officers, and other business, the question came up of arranging for the monthly collections of the Church for various benevolent objects, among which was the American Tract Society. After somewhat protracted discussion in which the pastor and some of the principal men of the Church participated, it was decided not to take up a collection for the American Tract Society the present year. Dr. Storrs embraced the opportunity to say that he would not by word or deed endorse the management of that institution, which, he believed, was pursuing a policy in the matter of Slavery which was not Christian, and which was not that of the Church of Christ. Dr. Storrs said he was not a Know-Nothing, but he was not a Slavery-Extension man, and he was not a Democrat. He was a Christian, and he was a Pilgrim, and he was a Republican, and he was a Fremont man, and he was a Kansas man, and he was a Sumner man, and he was a Brooks man, and he was a Pierce man, and he was a Buchanan man, and he was a Douglas man, and he was a Cushing man, and he was a Cass man, and he was a Dallas man, and he was a Polk man, and he was a Van Buren man, and he was a Tyler man, and he was a Harrison man, and he was a Clay man, and he was a Jackson man, and he was a Adams man, and he was a Monroe man, and he was a Madison man, and he was a Jefferson man, and he was a Washington man, and he was a Franklin man, and he was a Hancock man, and he was a Sam Adams man, and he was a Patrick Henry
